Sigma Zeta

Honorary Science Society

Sigma Zeta, a National Honorary Science Society, was founded at Shurtleff College in Alton, Illinois in 1925. The founders sought to include in its membership those juniors and seniors in any field of science and mathematics whom they felt should be recognized for their achievements in sound scholarship. Sigma Zeta has two purposes: to encourage and foster the attainment of a knowledge of the sciences; to recognize the attainment of high scholarship among those fitted for membership in this society. MVC received its charter as the third or Gamma, chapter in 1927. Active membership is extended to any student in the schools of Medicine, Dentistry, Nursing, or Pharmacy above sophomore standing who has a grade point average of 3.00 ($A = 4.00$) in the sciences and mathematics and a grade point average of 2.75 in all subjects including the sciences and mathematics. Gamma Chapter initiates its new members in the spring of the year at a banquet.

Alpha Omega Alpha is an Honorary Medical Society founded at the College of Medicine of the University of Illinois in 1902 by William W. Root. The Brown Sequard Chapter at MCV was organized in 1940. Being selected is one of the highest honors a student can be awarded as it demonstrates the highest scholarship and ideals, acceptance of responsibility and leadership, and scientific approach. Alumni membership is granted for distinctive achievement in the art and practice of scientific medicine.

This year, AOA held a banquet May 20 for new members. The AOA SAMA speaker this year was Dr. John S. Millis, who is Chancellor Emeritus of Case-Western Reserve. The fraternity also was co-sponsor of Medical Student Research and Honors Day held on May 21.

In 1929 the Lambda Chapter of Rho Chi was founded at the Medical College of Virginia. It has had as its object the promotion and recognition of high attainments in the pharmaceutical sciences. Scholarship, leadership, and character determine eligibility for membership. Activities this year included giving Rho Chi Recognition Certificates to sophomores, selling pamphlets on drug abuse, setting up files of all the Pharmacy graduate schools in the country, and setting up a weekly display at the public health department. There is an annual banquet in the spring in which new members are initiated.

Alpha Sigma Chi

Alpha Sigma Chi is an honorary leadership society organized to serve the college and student body, and to grant recognition to those students who through meeting high standards of leadership, scholarship, and character have demonstrated ability and willingness to play prominent roles in carrying on student activities. Members are selected from the schools of Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy and Nursing. An honorary member is chosen annually among the faculty. This year it was Mr. Hester. A banquet held in the spring highlights the activities of Alpha Sigma Chi and honors the newly selected members.

Alpha Kappa Kappa

In 1888, a group of students at the Dartmouth Medical School organized the Alpha Kappa Kappa Medical Fraternity. The fraternity was chartered in 1906 at MCV.

Membership in AKK is open to all male medical students. In addition, several doctors on the MCV faculty are honorary members. This year has been an active one for AKK. There have been rush parties, combo parties and picnics. The fraternity also offers the opportunity for wives to participate in the programs of the Wives' Club of AKK.

Phi Chi National Medical Fraternity was founded at the University of Vermont in 1889. The Theta Eta Chapter was established at MCV in March, 1889, as the fourth chapter in the U.S. Phi Chi is now the largest national and international medical fraternity. It was founded to promote the high ideals of scholarship and brotherhood among its members and all of medicine.

Activities of the Theta Eta Chapter include monthly meetings at which noted members of the MCV faculty and prominent Richmond citizens discuss topics of interest to the members in an informal atmosphere. There are also rush parties and smokers, picnics, and Combo parties. Our wives' club is active and its members participate in several community-oriented programs during the school year.

You mean this isn't the registration line for advanced basket-weaving?

Are you aware you have a cavity in your right incisor?

Alcohol — a depressant?

Love is togetherness — but this is ridiculous!

The objectives of Alpha Omega are to promote the profession of Dentistry, foster and develop high standards of scholarship, leadership, and character.

This year has been a particularly active and good one for AO here at MCV. The year was started off with a cookout, followed by a very successful rush smoker featuring Dr. DiBiaggio and a party at the Jester Club. The year continued with monthly dinner meetings and several parties. Things were finally brought to a close in May with our Senior Banquet.

The winner of the Professional Appearance Award.

Another dental party after a hard week of studying.

Dental bathing beauties???

Two parts bourbon, one part vodka, three parts sloe gin, a jigger of grain alcohol, and an ice cube — instant anesthesia.

And this, Gentlemen, is a tooth.

Repair Shop open — mechanic in.

Norman did it again!

Just a sec — I think I've found a cure for the grippe.

The "in" method of relaxation.

All right: the two in the corner can just cut it out!

Don't knock it — it beats carving teeth.

So he said "Dad, you don't run" and he laughed and he's showing outside too. Paraffin.

And another person makes a red spot in the world.

Monday, morning never come.

Somehow this is not quite how I pictured the Operating Room.

Alcohol breath? What alcohol breath?

And my group had 37% fewer babies after using _____.

X-Ray Interview: Warren E. Weaver

Warren Eldred Weaver is the Dean of the School of Pharmacy at the Medical College of Virginia, Health Sciences Division of the Virginia Commonwealth University. Dean Weaver was born on June 5, 1921, in Sparrows Point, Maryland. He was educated in the Public Schools of Baltimore County, Maryland. Dean Weaver obtained his B.S. in Pharmacy from the University of Maryland in 1942. He obtained his Ph. D. from the same institution in 1947. His Ph. D. is in Pharmaceutical Chemistry. He was appointed Dean of the School of Pharmacy in 1956. Dean Weaver is presently a member of the Board of Directors of the American Foundation for Pharmaceutical Education. He is also presently a member of the Board of Trustees of the American Pharmaceutical Association. Dean Weaver was President of the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy, 1968-1969. He was voted "Pharmacist of the Year" by the Virginia Pharmaceutical Association in 1963. In 1969, Dean Weaver was voted "Honored Alumnus" of the School of Pharmacy of the University of Maryland.

X-RAY: Most people's idea of a pharmacist is that of being cooped up in a drug store, counting tablets and filling bottles. We want to know how this image is being changed, and how the School of Pharmacy is involved in this change, and what the new golden image is.

WEAVER: That's a whole lot in one question; about three different questions, and involves a future role in pharmacists, and then how we modify our educational program to meet what is conceived to be a projected new role. At first, I would like to say something that you should bear in mind which I think is fairly widely misunderstood. While the school is changing its program so that pharmacists can do other things, I don't think that we are changing the program so that it excludes taking care of an existing program. I think that the distributive function will continue to be a function that the pharmacist is going to have for a long long time to come. Whether the actual mechanics of it is to be done by a registered pharmacist is beside the point. It can be done by machines, technicians, or, in some cases, by the pharmacist himself, but I think the pharmacist should have the responsibility for this activity. So, I don't see this as an area of responsibility that will not have the need of a pharmacist. What we are concerned about is that the student, and then the pharmacist, assume the responsibility for that particular function, and in addition, assume functions that he didn't have, or has enjoyed, in the past. I might say that a part of the so called "new function" is related to a revitalization of a lost function, and I speak here to the notion that the pharmacist, at one time, really did enjoy a role, with his patrons, of the friendly Doc. Even in the absence of a Doctor's degree, the public conferred it upon him in an honorary way because they felt they could go to the pharmacist and get bona fide information related to their health needs. I think that the fact that the number of prescriptions that have come along since World War II has inundated the pharmacist with these manipulated distributive functions to the exclusion of his friendly Doc pasture, and I think it has further evolved because of a distinct revolution in marketing and merchandising that came along and took the old corner drugstore and made it into a modern merchandising monstrosity. This viewpoint is from the professional side of pharmacy. We are trying to revitalize the communication between pharmacist and patient. Now, a new role the pharmacist is being educated for, is one of inter-professional responsibility where he works as part of a team with a physician and a nurse. Now this is one of the areas that we are really trying to concentrate on at the Medical College. I think this is an evolving role for the pharmacist so that he can participate as a responsible member of a health care team sometime in the future. When you speak of a health care team, I think you think of all those professionals who are involved with the care of people, and these professionals might be nurses, pharmacists, dentists, and public health workers, etc. A delivery of that care may come in many, many ways. It might come as a health care team working out of an institution, or out of a group practice. Much of this, of course, has to be developed in terms of how does a pharmacist fit into a group practice of other professionals. But the new role, as I see it then, is one of inter-professional liaison: the true development of the pharmacist as part of a health care team. That is also the evolving role of medicine too. We seem to think that only Pharmacy is changing, and all the rest remains the same this just isn't so. As a matter of fact, if you look at the other components of health care teams, you see a tremendously evolving bit of change taking place. The role of the Nurse and of the Physician is changing. The Dentist is changing from the old drill and bill deal to a fellow who is concerned about oral health.

. . . New Role . . . Inter-Professional Responsibility

Pharmacists

XRAY: What is the actual definition of clinical pharmacy?

WEAVER: You touch me on a very sensitive point there, because I have a built-in bias about this whole thing. To me, clinical pharmacy is a very simple thing. It's that part of pharmacy concerned with the patient and his problem, his response to the drug, and the pharmacist's involvement with the patient as it relates to this drug response. That to me is clinical pharmacy. Clinical pharmacy is not a setting; it is not an institution. I don't envision clinical pharmacy to be something that can be practiced in a hospital. I really believe that clinical pharmacy is better practiced in a community by community pharmacists. Yet, at the present time, the hospital people have jumped all over this as a plea to status. Well, hospital pharmacy and clinical pharmacy, I repeat, are not synonymous names. I don't visualize clinical pharmacy as a course. It is not a course like Physical Pharmacy, or Biochemistry. Clinical pharmacy is part of an attitude about the way you practice your profession. This is not too much different, I think, when you look at medicine and at clinical medicine, and the connotations that are involved in those two terms. I don't think that in medicine they try to segregate these two terms as being something totally different in concept. I think a lot of people visualize clinical pharmacy as the pharmacist making rounds with the physician. That isn't clinical pharmacy. Let me put it that way. It may be part of what we view as a total responsibility of a pharmacist and his relationships with his patients, but that, per se, is not clinical pharmacy. You make rounds with the doctors, but never talk with the patients, and that is no different than operating behind a glass wall in a supermarket. The thing that upsets me about this is the people snapping at the colleges, and saying that the colleges are teaching all this fancy clinical pharmacy and ignoring community pharmacy. People who say things like that don't know what clinical pharmacy is. They don't conceive of it the same way I do. I think part of this is because a lot of people perceive, in clinical pharmacy, a notion that there is a new claim to status here, and these people who further look on themselves as being the fellows who were most successful, now look on themselves as those being the most clinical, and I don't know that these things are all logical step by step types of these things.

Clinical Pharmacy: Student Interaction With Other Professionals

XRAY: Are most schools changing towards the clinical type of pharmacist-patient relationship?

WEAVER: Since I've been in education, I've never seen something catch on so quickly as the clinical pharmacy concept in education. It has not been widely discussed, but I would say most schools are doing what they think is clinical pharmacy, and the confusion of what they think is clinical pharmacy exists within the field of pharmacy education as much as it does in students and in those who practice pharmacy. This is so difficult to talk about because when you ask, "Are most schools doing something about clinical pharmacy?," the answer would be, "Yes." However, most are really doing something about clinical pharmacy as they see it in terms of the environment of the pharmacy student interaction with other professionals. This is part of clinical pharmacy. Many schools aren't doing as much in this direction as I would like. I really think to make clinical pharmacy meaningful, you have to have some kind of practice situation which they call the clinical years of medicine, and that's what I think they mean in pharmacy. I think some people are trying to get to this and call this clinical pharmacy, and if this is what they want to do, fine. I have no quarrel, basically, with the notion that clinical pharmacy is that part of the program that especially relates with the student practicing his profession. That's the reason why I think clinical pharmacy is so hard to get hold of. People want to segregate it, and make it different, when it is really a part of pharmacy. We have been mouse-trapped away down the road of the activity of the distribution and filling of prescriptions and so forth. We miss the bigger picture and our total responsibility to people. We have concentrated so much on the drug — that it is filled and labeled correctly — that we've forgotten how to be concerned about the patient and how he is doing. We speak of a prescription which is the drug; we ought to be concerned with helping people, and that's what we ore in the business for.

Beating the Chain at Its Game.

XRAY: Do you think pharmacists should prescribe?

WEAVER: I think pharmacists prescribe in an indirect sense in terms of recommending with respect to over-the-counter drugs and perhaps helping patients with their self-medication. Personally, I think this should be the basis limited to a pharmacist's prescribing working as a solo practitioner. In a group, I think the possibility of his being more actively involved with the selection of the drug is a little bit difficult. I definitely think that we are moving to a point where a pharmacist will select the specific brand of a group of generic drugs. I think that we definitely are moving in that direction where the pharmacist will have that prerogative. With the kind of educational background pharmacists have, I don't think we would be fair to the people if we permitted pharmacists to prescribe, as solo practitioners, potent drugs. If we educated pharmacists to the point where they could prescribe, we would have educated physicians, I think.

XRAY: What do you think of chains versus independent community pharmacies?

WEAVER: Unless the independent responds in a different way than he has in the past, I think the chain will take him over. I don't think you can beat the chains at their own game. I don't believe that the chain can put an independent out of business unless he tries to compete with the chain.

Kappa Epsilon, a national professional fraternity for women in pharmacy, was founded in Iowa City, Iowa on May 13, 1921 by Zeda M. Cooper. The Tau Chapter of the Medical College of Virginia was installed on March 20, 1953. The objectives of Kappa Epsilon are to unite women students in pharmacy, to stimulate in its members a desire for high scholarship, to foster a professional consciousness, and to provide a bond of lasting loyalty, interest, and friendship.

KE initiated its activities this year with a picnic supper for the new sophomore girls in pharmacy. Other social functions were held during rush which ended in the spring with a formal for the new pledges. To show appreciation for the dedication of its sponsor, Mrs. Annie Leeper, the sisters honored her with a tea in December.

The fraternity participated again this year in two functions on the community level. They went Christmas caroling with Kappa Psi to a local rest home and helped Phi Delta Chi give a Christmas party for underprivileged children in the Richmond area. For the first time, the fraternity adopted a child from the Appalachia area of the United States, whom they will help support. To foster professional consciousness, a college bowl was sponsored in the spring between the three pharmaceutical fraternities.

The National Convention will be held this summer at the University of Minnesota and KE will send two delegates. From this contact with other chapters, the sisters hope to find new ways to achieve their goals.

Kappa Psi

Kappa Psi Pharmaceutical Fraternity is the nation's oldest and largest pharmaceutical fraternity. Kappa Psi was chartered in 1879 and is composed of both collegiate and graduate chapters nationwide. The goal of the fraternity is to promote the high ideals and standards of the profession and to provide a medium through which students pursuing the profession of pharmacy can develop fellowship.

The main service project this year was working with MCV's methadone clinic for drug addicts. The Brothers visited the homes of those patients who dropped off the voluntary program once they had registered. In addition to providing useful information for the clinic they gave the Brothers a meaningful insight into the problem of drug abuse today.

Socially, Kappa Psi was equally as active with the annual "Back to School" open party on September 27 and a closed party on October 31.

Rush began early this year with rush functions in December and January. Bids were distributed to those individuals who met both the academic requirements and the high standards of the fraternity. Initiation of the "goats" followed the acceptance of bids. The formal banquet dance in April was the highlight of the year. This event marks the full acceptance of the new pledges into the fellowship of the fraternity. At the annual awards banquet in April, outstanding Brothers were recognized and newly elected officers were formally installed.

Phi Delta Chi

Phi Delta Chi Fraternity was founded on November 2, 1883, at the University of Michigan. Both students and faculty recognized that such an organization would bring students of pharmacy together for the discussion of scientific questions pertaining to pharmacy and its sister sciences. Since its founding, Phi Delta Chi has chartered 55 undergraduate chapters and initiated over 20,000 members. The Alpha Delta Chapter of Phi Delta Chi was chartered in 1925 at MCV.

This year has been an active one for PDC. We sponsored a used book sale in the early part of the year and manned drug abuse booths at the state fair in October. We also participated in National Pharmacy Week and Poison Prevention Week. In the fall, we had a "Back to School" Dance at Bon Air, and a rush dance at the Elks Home. With KE, we gave a Christmas party for underprivileged children. The formal banquet in the spring is the major social event of the year. This event marks the full acceptance of the new pledges into the fellowship of the fraternity. Other activities include sending representatives to the South-Eastern Regional Convention of PDC and to the Grand Council in New Orleans during June 13-17.

Acknowledgements

February 8, 1971; 4:00 A.M. Now that I have, I hope, beaten the deadline to send off the 1971 X-Ray to Taylor Publishing Company, my blurred mind is too tired to write a graceful farewell note. The past year has been the most challenging, and frustrating of my life. There have been some high spots and low spots — mostly low spots; disappointment followed by achievement.

My sincere thanks to everyone who contributed in any way to the 1971 X-Ray. Special thanks to my assistant editor, my section editors, their helpers, and the business staff for their time and hard work. My appreciation to Murray Bartlestone of Rappoport Studios for his assistance with the photography in the book. I am grateful to Dean Bacon, Mr. William Robertson, Mrs. Louise King, and Miss Joann Spittler for the help they have given me in putting together this annual. And last, but not least, I would like to give special thanks to Danny DeFalco and Bud Rose of Taylor Publishing Company for their creative ideas and constant support. (I'll never forget Dallas or Jeff).

My apologies for misspelled names, unflattering pictures and any other errors involving one's self image.

Shrimp Ryan — Editor

P.S. I would especially like to thank my roommate, Ann White, for putting up with my grumpy moods during this whole year.

Vepco's first commercial atomic power station is now under construction in Surry County, Virginia. In the new Information Center overlooking the site, you will see an excellent slide presentation, fascinating exhibits, and a working model of the reactor. (And from the balcony, you can watch them assemble the real thing.) Open 10 AM to 4 PM Monday through Saturday and 1 PM to 6 PM on Sunday. For tour information call 771-3194 in Richmond.
